News of the sinking of the Ancona was not made public in London until just a short time before noon, when the censor released the first dispatch from New York on the subject. This dispatch referred to the fact that a rensation bad been caused by the torpedoing of the Ancona, but as nothing previously had been heard of the dispatch referred to the fact that a rensation bad been caused by the torpedoing of the Ancona, but as nothing previously had been heard of the dispatch, the message was incomprehensible. Subsequently, however, a glood of messages from Rome was released.

Rome, Nov. 9, via Parls, Nov. 10.—The Italian liner Ancona, sunk in the Mediterranean by a submarine had on board $3 first cabin passengers, 60 second cabin and 339 steerage. Few details have been received here at this hour concerning the sinking of the Ancona. News of the loss of the vessel caused greatest anxiety in Rome.

The first report of the sinking of the Ancona said there were 422 passencers and 60 members of the crew on board. According to the foregoing dispatch, however, the number of passengers was 482, which with a crew of the Livietta was taken off by the tug Russell shortly after midnight last night. There is no information as to how the fire started.

Galveston, Tex., Nov. 10.—The Italian liner Ancona ship with a cargo of case oil, is in flames about six by miles off Sabine Bar. Little hope is entertained that the ship will be saved. Efforts are being made today to get the steamer into shoal water, but the extreme heat is making the task difficult.

The first report of the sinking of the Ancona said there were 422 passencers and 60 members of the crew on board. According to the foregoing dispatch, however, the number of passencers was 482, which with a crew of sixty would give a total of 542. Cape Bon, where two of the Ancona's boats landed with fifty-four members of the crew, is the northeastern extremity of Tunis, about seventy miles cast of Bizerta, where, according to advices last night, 270 survivors were landed. This makes a total of 324 survivors thus far accounted for.

Cape Bon, Tunis, Nov. 10, via London.—Two of the Ancona's boats with fifty-four members of the crew landed near this point. Some of the men were injured.

Washington Awaits News.

Washington, Nov. 10.—Definite information concerning the sinking of the Italian liner Ancona by a submarine flying the Austrian flag, was anxiously awaited today by officials of the United States government. Should it Sanich Hill, British Columbia, by the Canadian government. Should it develop that Americans aboard lost their lives and the steamer was torpedoed without warning, the American government probably would demand of the Austrian government disavowal of the act, reparation and assurances that there would be no repetition of the incident.

United States to Make Inquiry.
Secretary Lansing indicated the United States would await, for a resonable time, an official report on the sinking of the Ancona, but that if official word is not received within a reasonable time, the department will inquire into the affair through tembassy at Rome.

Department officials said they have made no request of American Augustassander Page or any consular office. Dean B. Mahon, consul at Algeria. Algiers, about 300 miles west of Biard a report is expected from him, especially if American lives are lost. McCormick on Vessel?

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Reports that Haroid F. McCormick of the International Harvester company and son-inlaw of John D. Rockefeller was a passenger on the steamer Ancons were discredited by officials of the tompany today.

"We do not believe Mr. McCormick has left Europe." one official said, "because he has invariably preceded his sailing with a message advising us of the fact, giving the name of the ship and date of his arrival. No such word has come."

Ruffo Not on Liner.

Reports that Titta Ruffo, the famous baritone, was a passenger on the Ancona were discredited by his brother, Ettore Ruffo, a teacher at the Chicago Conservatory of Music.

"I feel certain that my brother was not on the ship, as he would have cabled me had he started." Ruffo said. He added that Titta had not expected to sail before December 1, as he was not required to report to the Chicago Grand Opera company before December 15.

New York, Nov. 10.—The Ancona, according to local agents, was scheduled to sail from Naples yesterday. After leaving Naples the steamer would pass through the Tyrrhenian sea and enter the Mediterranean between Sardinia and Sicily. The meagre dispatches indicate that the Ancona was sunk within the comparatively small triangle, the points of which are, southern end of Sardinia, the western end of Sicily, and Bizeria, Tunis.

The Austrian submarine reported to have torpedoed and sunk the Ancona at or near the entrance to the Malta Channel, which is a narrow strip of the Mediterranean between Sicily and coast of Africa. Austrian and German submarines have been active in this region of late, according to cable reports.

War vessels and transports of allies enroute to the scene of operations at the Dardanelles, as well as the forces sent to Saloniki, all pass through the Malta Channel.

Cabin List Too High.

As soon as the local agents learned of the sinking, they cabled the home office at Naples for a complete passenger list. At present nothing is known here concerning the personnel of the passengers, but Mr. Solari though the number of first cabin passengers—83—as given in cable report today, was too high. He said the Ancona has accommodation for only 50 first cabin passengers. On the last three trips from Naples to New York. Mr. Solari said more than half of the Ancona's passengers have been women and children, owing to the fact that few men of military age are leaving Italy.

The Ancona has not been used as a transport during the present war, the agent said, nor has the vessel carried any munitions. She has been a favorite steamer with opera singers and musicians coming to this country.

Pittsburgh, Nov. 10.—During a lecture here last night. Dr. John A. Brashear, president of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, and one of the most eminent astronomers, revealed to his audience that there is nearing completion in Pittsburgh, under the direction of James D. McDowell, the largest reflecting mirror ever made.

It is seventy-two feet in diameter and weighs two and one-quarter tons, with a focal length of thirty feet. The mounting is being made in Cleveland and the telescope will be set upon Saanich Hill, British Columbia, by the Canadian government.

London, Nov. 10.—Premier Asquith will ask the house of commons today for a vote of credit of £400,000,000 ($2,000,000,000). This will make the total amount voted for war purposes in the current year 1,300,000,000 pounds sterling ($5,500,000,000). With the amount voted in the financial year of 1914-15, the sum allotted for the war, including the new vote of credit, will reach the aggregate of £1,662,000,000 ($5,310,000,000).

BRITISH SEARCHED AMERICAN STEAMER IN MEXICAN PORT

Washington, Nov. 10.-The American steamer, Zealandia, was forcibly ALLIES searched by a party from a British cruiser last week, while lying in port of Progresso, Mexico. The American of Progresso, Mexico. The American consul there reports the cruiser now is lying outside, presumably waiting to seize the ship.

On the face of such a report as the consul sent, even though incomplete, the official conclusion here is that the British naval authorities not only violated Mexican neutrality, but far exceeded their rights in forcibly searching an American ship in a neutral port.

The forcible searching of an American ship in a neutral port probably would constitute one of the most serious issues to arise between United States and Great British navy's conduct toward American shipping. While awaiting further details, officials were silent. A thorough investigation will be made.

M. C. A. building, impressed the members of the club with the magnitude of the results attained and with the importance of keeping the associations throughout the country alive and active.

results attained and with the imporance of keeping the associations throughout the country alive and active.

Karl Shumaker, state secretary for Illinois, in an illustrated address, gave a comprehensive view of the Y. M. C. A. In its nation-wide and world-wide scope. The association is now housed in great buildings in the metropolitan centers, costing into the hundreds of thousands of dollars, and reaches out with its influence to millions of men and boys.

"The reason why the Y. M. C. A. is able to draw upon wealthy men and secure the support of business men everywhere is because it brings results. It serves to develop the boy and young man from every angle, physical, moral, intellectual, spiritual,
social and industrial, and in this way develops character, the greatest asset that any man or any community can have. There used to be a time when we secretaries of Young Men's Christian associations went around apologizing for our work, for our equipment, and sometimes for our boards of directors, but that day has now gone by. We can point to results and we can get the support which the great movement needs and demands.
Large buildings, equipped in the finest style to carry on the various activities are being erected in cities all over the country, with every dollar paid in or subscribed before the work is begun. That is testimony to the reoognized value of the association in the minds of business men who do not invest money unless they can see results.

Mr. Shumaker, with the use of is done through groups, nine of which are now organized in this county.

Secretary C. R. Bearmore spoke optimistically of the plan of work which will be carried on by the local association this winter. F. S. Baines was the leader for the evening.

Musical numbers on the program were solos by Miss Manila Powers, C. R. Bearmore and Stanlay Horwood.

It was voted to invite the members of the county board to the January meeting of the club. A. S. Krotz was named as the club's representative on the civic council.

Chicago. Nov. 10.—The bottom practically fell out of the hog market this morning when an influx of some 37,000 head forced prices down ten and fifteen cents to start with and showed indications of further declines before the day was over. Best heavy stock sold as high as $7.20. But there was plenty of stock which brought little more than $6.20. Cattle also has a poor demand due in part to receipts of 18,000 head. ## LA FOLLETTE'S SEAMAN'S

With the Seaman's bill, advocated by Senator Robert M. La Follette of this state, in actual operation, the press of the country have renewed their connection to the enforcement of that they will take up the fight again press of the country have renewed their opposition to the enforcement of its provisions. It is really a revolt within the democratic party and will work out its effect at the next general election. The Evening Wisconsin writes of the bill as follows:

"A Washington correspondent has interviewed a federal official—name fear.

"A Washington correspondent has interviewed a federal official—name not given—who confirms the prediction of disaster likely to follow the enforcement of the seamen's law; which is set for this month.

"The Savannah News gives the seather's bill a very hard punch when it that old-fashioned axiom, discretion men's bill a very bard punch.

There are three things to be conridere are three things to be considered in framing legislation governing American shipping in the foreign trade. One is the safeguarding of passengers at sea, another is the protection of sailors, and the thirt the tection of sailors, and the third is the enabling of American vessels to exist in the face of foreign competition. If foreign vessels can run our ships from the seas merely because they can be operated more cheaply, it is useless to make laws safeguarding passengers and protecting sailors on American ships, for there will be neither sailors to protect nor passengers to safeguard.

'The reaction against the seamen's bill inside the democratic party ought to have some influence on the head of the democratic administration."

THE LABOR PROBLEM.

An interesting sidelight on industrial unrest was furnished the other day by a visitor from another state. He is in the business of shoe manufacturing. Speaking of the low wages prevailing in many industries, he gave this bit of personal experience.

Some months ago the girls in the stitching room of his factory, who had long been dissatisfied, became particularly rebellious. The majority of them were earning only about $5.00 per week. The company claimed it per week. The company claimed it was all they earned.

A system of piece prices was suggested by the employers. The girls were hostile to it, feeling it was all a scheme to squeeze more work out of them.

Finally the girls reluctably consented to try it out. They found they could earn more without difficulty. Now the great majority of them are getting $10.00 to $11.00 per week. What is still more remarkable, the concern is getting the shoes stitched more cheaply than before. In arranging new prices, the concern now sizes.

ing new prices, the concern now aims to make it possible for the girls to earn 20 to 25 cents an hour, and it can afford to do it.

This illustrates how indolently many people will work when their ambition is not roused. They take no interest in the success of their employer, and plug along day after day without effort to improve their methods.

THE PROGRESSIVES' RETURN.

In all the states where elections were held the fact that the progressives had returned to the republican fold was manifested. There are, perhaps, no voters who study politics

He Could Hardly Wear His Clothes

Alvis Sowers, Ade, Ind., endured terrible pains in his back and through his kidneys for eight years before he finally used Foley Kidney Pills. He says: "I would bloat up at times so that I could hardly wear my olothes. Secretions were scant and very red. Foley Kidney Pills were recommended to me, and the first box removed the pain and after taking only three boxes the bloating was all gone and has never bothered me since."

Just ahout everybody who has used Foley Kidney Pills is anxious to recommend them. From every state in the Union come letters praising Foley Kidney Fills, because they so tone up and strengthen the kidneys that by their vigorous, healthy action all the ill results of sore, weak, alling kidneys and irregular bladder action are lost in a return of health and vigor. Swollen, aching Joints and rhealing, curative qualities.

HOWE'S TESTIMONY FAILS TO CONVICT JACKSON IN TRIAL THE TIME

Jury Finds George Jackson Not Guilty on Three Counts Made by District Attorney Dunwiddle.

Attorney Dunwiddle.

That there is no truth in the often accepted and believed statement, that there is "honor among thieves," is shown by the outcome of the trial of George Jackson of Beloit, who was acquitted on the charge of being an accomplice in the robbery of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad station in Beloit with Paul Howe, now a convict at the state's prison. Monday and Tuesday, Paul Howe, confessed highwayman, went on the stand and swore to testimony that implicated Jackson in both of the robberies which Howe has admitted committing and for which he received a seven years' sentence.

District Attorney Dunwiddie, during the arrangement of Howe obtained years' sentence.

District Attorney Dunwiddie, during the arraignment of Howe, obtained a lengthy confession from him, in which Howe gave in detail the manner in which he robbed both station agents at the point of a gun, and according to the confession rehearsed the robberly with Jackson, had Jackson as a "look-out" man while he did the robberles and then divided the spoils with him in both cases. The confession is filled with statements typical of a hardened criminal, who for some unknown reason, turned against a former comrade and gave testimony in hopes of seeing him share the same fate in a prison term. Howe's weird tale was given with an air of a bravo without a line of respect or honor towards Jackson.

Twice Howe repeated the same story against Jackson, first in the preliminary examination, and the second time in the trial which started before a jury Monday. Mayor Adams of Beloit defended Jackson and introduced evidence to establish an allbi. Yesterday Jackson was placed on the stand and for several hours was subject to a cross-examination, but his declaration of innocence remained unsbaken by the state. The jury exonerated him and evidently believed the confession and testimony of Howe to be false.

This is Paul Howe's fourth term in weight and the second terms and and providently believed the of the second that we have a subject to a cross-examination, but his declaration and testimony of Howe to be false.

erated him and evidently believed the confession and testimony of Howe to be false.

This is Paul Howe's fourth term in a Wisconsin penal institution for varitous crimes. Police officers and authorities who have investigated his case firmly believe him to be insane along criminal lines. He is afflicted with tuberculosis and it is not expected by the will live out the Waupun term if he is confined within the penitentiary all the time.

The jury yesterday afternoon rendered a verdict of not guilty on all three counts, the first being that Jackson was an accomplice in the robbery, second to being an accessory before the fact and the third for receiving stolen money.

Paul Howe was returned to Waupun last evening by Agent Bradley, who had him in charge during the trial, at which he testified through habeas corpus proceedings.

Many Ailments Due to Constipation

Constipation is due to an abnormal, or diseased condition of the bowels and permits of polson being absorbed into the blood and by it carried to the various tissues of the body. This polson effects the nerves, causing nervousness, and renders kidneys, liver and other organs unable to perform their natural work.

This polson causes a gradual failure in health until there is no health. To regain health it must be removed from the system. The impoverished blood must be replaced by good, rich, pure blood.

The milk and rest treatment will not only remove the polson but will restore to health the diseased organs. It is the quickest, surest and safest method of regaining health.

Ella Hall and Robert Leonard gave to the strong dramatic photo-play "Heritage" a punch that awakened the minds of the audience last evening to the vital problems connected with inheritance. Miss Hall beautisfully portrays the life of a hard working city girl, raised from childhood without a mother and with a father that only a detriment to her. She comes by chance into contact with a wealthy New York family and with only great difficulty crawls from beneath the binding net of environment into a higher plane of living. Her marriage to one of society's most approximate that the binding net of environment all roses, for she discovers that there alloes not exist the real Cupid that should come creeping into the love romances of the cheerless society world and she longs for her really own simple ways of love. In a fit of passon she leaves her home and beautiful surroundings to go back to the life she used to cherish when a child.

Robert Leonard splendidly acts in Posson Jones; Carl, With the Empress Dowager of China; Carleton, The Motor Girl; Chesnutt, Frederick Douglas; Churchill, Coniston; Clements, The 30,000 Bequest; Ouster, Boots and Saddles; Davis, Little Chevalier; Donworth, Down Home With Jennie Allen; Doubleday, The Gainsbury Affair.

Tomorrow's Offering is a Unique Romance

Walker Whiteside in "The Melting In the acquiring of "The Melting Pot" for the Apollo thestre, Manager Zanlas undoubtedly made a "tenstrike" in the field of motion pictures. Israel Zangwill's famous drams, which enjoyed such a protracted run in the legitimate theaters a number of years ago, comes to this playhouse next Tuesday and Wednesday in six reels of film, with Walker Whiteside picturing the role he created on the stage. None of the charm or dramatic qualities has been removed from this noted subject by transferring it to the calluloid. In fact, the wide scope of the camera bas enhanced the production greatly by adding scenes which the spoken drama could not present and elaborating tipon other settings, limited in the theaters on account of the comparatively small stage.

Thus, this remarkable play comes to this city with a picture vividly depicting the persecution of Jews in Russia, a massabacre, which scene was deftly, handled by the producers, omitting all grewsomeness, and the influx of foreigners into the United States and their struggles here.

At the Apoll 10. ports the spectator to the southern seas. Aboard a yacht with John Charnock, his half-invalid wife and their little son, John Charnock, Jr., who sail southern seas. Husband and wife are enjoying a merry game of cards. The captain enters and reports a fire in the hold. The lifeboat is lowered. The mother, the child and their dog are placed on board, but before the others can follow the flames sweep upward, enveloping them. The boat pushes out to safety. A final view of the burning yacht shows the victims overcome by the smoke and flames prostrate on the deck. The end is inevitable. The lifeboat, with its stricken occupants, grounds upon a coral reef. They wade ashore, and then there is a scene in which the mother, dying from privation, gives the child her water-soaked bible and begs him once more to say his prayers. While he is praying the mother hides her face. The final struggle is over.

There is a glimpse, months later, of the child standing alone by the shore. His little suit has become rags: his hair has grown long; his face is bronzed to the hue of the tropics. He is growing into a wild man.

Twenty years elapse between this last glimpse of the pathetic little castaway and the next picture, which shows Katherine Brenton, an attractive young woman, airing the radical views about social conditions.

castaway and the next picture, which shows Katherine Brenton, an attractive young woman, airing the radical views about social conditions. A rich clubman takes her vaporings literally; proposes that on his yacht, the Southern Cross, they discuss at will, and practice if one wishes, her strange precepts.

The pictures reveal her aboard the yacht, but resenting his informal attitude. A quarrel follows, and the girl flings him from her with such force that he is stunned. Katherine escapes in a launch, exhausted, and she drifts upon the coral reef. As she lies worn with fattaue upon the beach, the castaway finds her.

Terrifying in aspect but of manner gentle as a woman is this strange creature of the long black hair, the thick dark beard, and the costume consisting only of a semblance of a ballst skirt made of leaves.

Edith Storey is the idealist girl, Antonio Moreno, the wild man, S. Rankin Drew the villain, and Bobby Connelly the charming little castaway.

The Popular Plays and Players company has already brought forward several virile productions on the Metro programme. One of these was Mme. Petrova in "The Heart of a Painted Woman." This gifted actress will again appear in another Popular Plays and Players production, under Metro auspices, at the Myers in "The Vampire."

auspices, at the Myers in "The Vampire."

As Jeanne Lefarge, Mme. Petrova will have another role in which heremotional powers will have full sway. Jeanne is accidentally injured while touring in an automobile. In her convalescence she meets a married man who realizes he can only win her by offering marriage. An illegal marriage ceremony is performed and later the man abandous Jeanne, who becomes an outcast and a man-hater. Seeking refuge in Europe, Jeanne meets on the steamer two men outcasts and they all conspire against the world. Jeanne becomes notorious as a scheming and heartless woman, and the epithet, "Vampire," is applied to her. She enmeshes a young attache of the American legation and after securing valuable documents from him, she finds she is in love with him. One of her co-conspirators, whom she met on the steamer, comes into possession of these secret papers, and when trying to get the papers back to return them to the attache, Jeanne discovers that the young attache is the son of the man responsible for her ruin. Her old hate is awakened again.

Events bring all back to New York.

the son of the man responsible for her ruin. Her old hate is awakened again.

Events bring all back to New York. Complications involve Jeanne with both the father and son and the young man's fancee. The young man breaks his engagement, declares his love for Jeanne and his father is forced to give his consent to their marriage. A dramatic scene is introduced when the father discovers that Jeanne is none other than the woman he married illegally and deserted. The father accuses Jeanne of being an adventuress. She wrings from him a confession before his son that he had deceived her. The son throws convention to the winds and decides to marry Jeanne, but he is prevented by the woman herself, who is threatened with exposure of the part she played in securing the state documents. Jeanne brings about a reconciliation between the young, attache and his flancee, realizing that a happy marriage could never have resulted if she had married him herself while he had full knowledge of the history of her past.

The book and lyries are by Rida Johnson Young, author of "Naughty Marietta," "Brown of Harvard," "The Cottery Man" and many of Chauncey Olcott's successes, and the music is by William Schroeder.

The elaborate gowns that will be worn were designed by Lady Duff Gor-don and are the extreme of modern sartorial splendor.

An augmented orchestra under the direction of Whitney Bennington will interpret the twenty odd song hits among which are "Pick a Pickaninny," "Kiss Me Once More," "Dream On My Princess," "Written in The Book of Destiny" and "Longing For You."

Silently the five who were unharmed except for bruises slipped into the heavily running tidewater and disappeared amid the flotsam and jetsam of the long bay which traveled always aimlessly back and forth.

The groaning of the raft grew in volume for a few minutes, then subsided as it locked and settled. Daily on the shore began threshing the ferns, filling the night with his stentorian voice as he called upon Sandry's name. From time to time he listened. Then he. lighted a torch and widened his circle, peering into every covert of fern, behind every log, and even searching the branches of the trees. He had seen the pines bear ghastly fruit a time or two when a blast of giant powder had gone wrong.

After a long time he straightened and his muddy face was blanched.
"Done for!" he said aloud to the dusk of the forest, bitterly. "Down an done for-an' him so damned good for

Here was his employer, this Easterner who was going through the ordeal by fire to win his right to live and fight in the wild land, and he was all but worsted, down and out. His life was not worth a copper—that coin of which the large West takes no notice-and far on the shores of the other ocean was that old father of whom he had told Daily in the quiet talks at night. It would take quick work to get Sandry to a doctor and word should be sent East at once.

On the other hand, if Sandry should live and the contract had been lost his fight would be over. Those mortgages of which he had spoken vaguely would be foreclosed and the Dillingworth would become a thing of the past, the East Belt go by the board and Hampden would be supreme in the

Without a word, the four Indians picked out by name set about their appointed task. In less time than a white man would take to begin they had laid clean saplings along blankets' edges, warped a short spreader at top and bottom to hold the poles the width of a man's shoulders apart, and the sling was ready

His foreman cast one look at him as the Indians swung away on the back trail and turned his face to the jammed raft. He studied the problem from all sides. Then he took his remaining Indians, for none of them were beyond work from their shakingup, got off the mooring chains and snubbed the monster to the shore pines fore and aft. Then he calmly prepared to wait the turn of the tide She would loose herself.

The damage at the prow was slight. The lift had come a moment too soon to hurt the big raft much. Several of the binding chains at the extreme head of her had been broken, loosening the ends of the logs which slid downward and apart, giving her the appearance of a ragged broom.

Snamishta, like all the coast Indians, was a good waterman. He of-fered to dive for the broken chains and Daily let him go. In three hours he had found all the ends, fastened to them hauling lines, which the others used to bring them up, the breakage was repaired, and Daily was ready to mend the broken nose as well as he could. He needed to circle the loosened logs with the chains again, and he went about it in a simple manner,

There was no getting under the raft from the front because of the jam against the shore, even if Snamishta could have managed the tide and endured the time under water. Therefore it must be done from the other also-had not intended to make known

The hours of the flood tide were irk some to him, waiting, wondering how it fared with Sandry swinging between the Indians, and thinking bitterly of Hampden, who was proving himself a dangerous enemy.

But he thought also of the steame plowing down from Portland, which would stand in at Yaquina, and he knew he would be ready to turn over the raft in spite of all.

Here the girl flung herself on her knees, gripping her braids in savage fingers, and for a wild space something within her that she had never known in all her life arose and shook her. She had gone back a thousand years. Blind rage was upon her-she wanted to fight as the prehistoric female fought for her mate.

So she knelt and rocked in the lust of fury while the little clouds sailed in an azure sky and the hill streams trickled to the valleys, and suddenly a bird in a high pine top dropped a string of notes, clear, silvery, sparkling, for all the world like the diamond notes of a flute and instantly she cowered under them, covering her eyes in instinctive guilt.

Miss Mae E. Jones, daughter of James Jones of this city, and John Share, also of this city, were married at low mass at 6:30 o'clock by Rev. Thomas Dempsey, while Miss Margie F. Norton, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Frank Norton, of this city, and James Hyland' of Argyle, were united in the bonds of matrimony at a nuptial high mass at 7 o'clock. Rev. M. K. Norton of Waukon, Is., an uncle of the bride, officiating. Miss Jones and Mr. Share were attended by Miss Edna Jones, sister of the bride, and Fred Share, brother of the price, and Will Hyland, sister and brother of the pair.

The weddings were simple but impressive. Following the ceremonles a wedding breakfast was served at the brides' homes, only the immediate families being present. Both couples left for a wedding tour to Chicago and Milwaukee.

Both young ladies are well known in this city and are popular among a host of friends. Several social functions were recently given in their honor. Both are members of the Reading club and Catholic Sodality. Miss Norton is a graduate of the Monroe high school and Monroe Business Institute, and has taught school since her graduation.

Mr. Share is a young man of ability and sterling character. Up to several months ago, he was in partnership with Edward Becker under the firm name of Becker & Share, Since disposing of the grocery stock, Mr. Share has held a clerkship with Carroll Bros. Mr. Hyland is a graduate of the Argyle high school and Monroe Business Institute, and has made many friends during his frequent visits to this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Share will reside with her father on West Liberty street and Mr. and Mrs. Share will reside with her father on on a farm near Argyle.

The best wishes and congratulations of their many friends will be showered upon them upon their return.

HEALTH TALKS By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

We can see but one wise remedy. Let the laborer carry a sickness and accident policy which will protect his income. Then let him contract with his family doctor for all necessary medical services at a definite sum per month. This plan is working successfully in many cities; so long as it is satisfactory to the patient and the doctor it is bound to be a success. A surprisingly small monthly tax suffices to insure consci-

Mrs. George Alexander Mosshart.

Railroad rates, it is generally believed, are not ir, the sphere of woman's comprehension, but there is at least one woman who has proved her capacity to master that dry and technical subject. She is Mrs. George Alexander Mosshart, president of the Washington Woman Suffrage Council and treasurer of the committee of influential Washington women who are in charge of the arrangements which are being made for the forty-seventh annual convention of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, to be held in Washington, December 14-19.

SIDE TALKS BUTH CAMERON

"Doesn't that depend?" questioned

"On what kind of enemies they are."
"You mean—?"

"Whether they are enemi-conviction or mere personal enemies."
The Authorman's point is well taken isn't it?

It is rather the style nowadays to deprecate too general a popularity as the sign of a personality which has no backbone, but is a "mush of concession."

Many People Are Proud Of Their Enemies.

Their Enemies.

Now that may be all very true, but it does not prove the converse—namely, that unpopularity is a sign of a strong character. And yet that converse seems to be as generally accepted as the theorem itself and many people have the idea that an enemy, no matter of what nature, is something to be proud of.

It is a foolish feeling and ought to be uprooted.

to be uprooted.

There are enemies and enemies.
When by standing up for some honest conviction you antagonize someone and make an enemy, you

"I wouldn't have any use for a man who hadn't an enemy," oried Molly, the little stenographer lady, with flashing eyes.

Someone had been speaking with disapproval of a man who seemed to have a good many enemies.

Should You Be Proud Of Having

proud of this antagonism.

Should You Be Proud Of Having Been Disagreeable?

If, on the other hand, you say a disagreeable thing, or ,do some thing unkind, and thereby make an enemy, why should you be proud? On the contrary, you should be heartly ashamed and do your best to make him your friend again.

To take a slight life is a fearful and don's nightshirt is a fearful and wonderful garment, and Count Zeppellin is responsible for this "nighty" revolution.

Since the Count's Zeps have been Zepping London, no self respecting Londoner has gone to bed in anything unfit for public gaze.

best to make him your friend again.

To take a slightly different aspect of the case, people are often proud of their own dislikes because they have the feeling that to like everyone is the sign of a weak character. Before you praise your-sonality in not liking everyone, ask yourself, "What are my dislikes founded on?"

Are they founded on envy, on resentment of some slight, on some old grievance, or are they founded on the fact that the person is mean or disagreeable, or has principles antagonistic to yours?

Hate the Sin But Not the Sinner: class of dislike is justifiable, for one should, of course, hate the fault or the unworthy principle rather than its possessor.

As the tender-hearted children's poet once beautifully said:

"If we could read the secret history of our enemies we should find in each man's life sorrow and suffering enough to disarm all hostility."

DIVORCE RATE IN GERMANY

DECREASED DURING WAR.

[BY ASSOCIATED FRESS.]

Berlin. Nov. 10.—The statistical year hook just published asserts that divorce rate in Germany, after steadily growing for the past ten years, is decreasing.

The divorce rate for Prussia, however, per 100,000 of population, in 1913, which is the latest year for which full statistics have been compiled, is held up as an especially black mark for that portion of the Empire; the figures for Prussia are: 26.9, as compared with 23.7 five years previously, and as compared with 26.6 for the whole German Empire, while Bayaria has the remarkably low rate of 16.4. Hamburg jumps to the top of the list, however, with 93.4.

Zepping London, no self respecting Londoner has gone to bed in anything unfit for public gaze.

Tasteful blue and pink pajamas, masculine and feminine variety, the later heribboned and frilled, are in vogue. They have almost entirely superseded the good old homely unfilled "nighty." Fancy red, blue or pink slippers to match the goregous "nightles" are also most proper, while it is intimated in the best circles that nightcaps—not liquid ones—have come back to their very. own Patent hair curlers have been discarded by the women.

No feminine Londoner, says good authority, will take the risk of being "zepped" in these; at least, not in the "zepping" season.

London shopkeepers have let the cat out of the bag. While signing a rush order for hundreds of pairs of the latest model pajamas, the proprietor of a big London store explained:

"No stage hero in his most admired pajama scene is better attired today than the average "bedroom" Londoner. Men's pajamas are, of course, the plain article, but the feminine ones have gotten into a class of their own."

The October, 1915, model of the "female pajama" comes in a pink crep de chene, cut on a more or less mannish angle and frilled at the waist and ankies with delicately tinted slik ribbon. Another popular model composes a one-piece suit with a high waistline and a high neck. Fancy buttons adorn this model—for decorative purposes only.

Pink and blue are the prevailing colors, though there is ome talk, say the shopkeepers. of introducing a "Joffre grey." It's a more invisible color.

"Joffre grey." It's a more invisible color.

Nightcaps, whose usage had begun to cease, are adding to the splendor of the newest nightdresses. Women, so intrepid as to defy Count Zep and attach the patent curlors, find the nightcap a blessed reitef. The latest mode takes the form, principally, of the old Neapolitan cap, sewn of thin yet durable enough material to successfully disguise the curlers or "washerwoman's knots."

Whether the Germans know it or not, the demand for bedroom slippers runs to the fancy Turkish model. But so long as no Turkish imports are available and the brand can be made in England, there is no harm in supplying the demand, believe the London shopkeepers.
